Just a quick note tonight, been very busy with everything and things to look after with the family too. I am sure everyone is doing the drill. We could see a bear market rally, it does not make sense with the fundamentals, but perhaps the Fed has pumped enough QE in for ample liquidity to ease the selling. Markets and gold soaring the same day is proof of that. The DOW was up over 2,000 and gold $100.

The DOW and S&P show morning star reversal patterns and the Nasdaq Composite a morning doji star reversal. I will show the S&P 500 in this chart. A morning star starts with a down day, red candle on Friday, a gap away from that red candle (Monday) followed by a gap up and white candle today. These are strong reversal patterns and could only mean a rally for a few days, but could be longer. My next target on the S&P was around 2100, maybe Monday was close enough? Never the less it is a rally that should be sold into. If I come up with a good trading idea, will send it out pre market open. Email any ideas!!!!
